SECTION B :

QUESTION ONE: LITERARY / NON-LITERARY TEXT (15 MARKS)

Text A

Read the story and then answer the questions that follow.

1. A long time ago, in a long-lost land of forests, atop a high mountain, trapped in an ancient volcano, lived the last group of big, angry dinosaurs. For thousands of years, they had survived all the changes on earth.

2. Now they decided to leave their safe hiding place, under the leadership of the great Tyrannosaurus Rex. Dinosaurs had been separated from the world for far too long, and it was time for them to reclaim their power. When their leader told them of this plan, the dinosaurs' roars were as loud as thunder.

3. They began to break down the walls of the great crater, so that they could reach the outside world. When they were done, all the dinosaurs sharpened their claws, ready to terrorize the world again.

4. But everything outside the volcano was very different from what the dinosaurs remembered. For days they journeyed through the mountains. Finally, from the top of one mountain, they saw a village down in the valley. It was so far away from them that the houses and people seemed very small.

5. They began charging down the mountain, ready to crush anything that stood in their way...But the closer they got to the village, the bigger the houses seemed. When the dinosaurs finally reached the village, the houses were much bigger than the dinosaurs themselves. A young boy walked by and cried to his father, "Daddy! Daddy! Just look at those little dinosaurs! Can we take them home?"

6. And so it goes in life… The fearsome Tyrannosaurus Rex and his friends became the pets of the village children. After millions of years of evolution, they had evolved into a miniature species. The dinosaurs learned that nothing lasts forever, and that one must always be ready to adapt to meet the challenges that lie ahead.
