TASK 6: STAGE 1 – RESEARCH (20 marks)

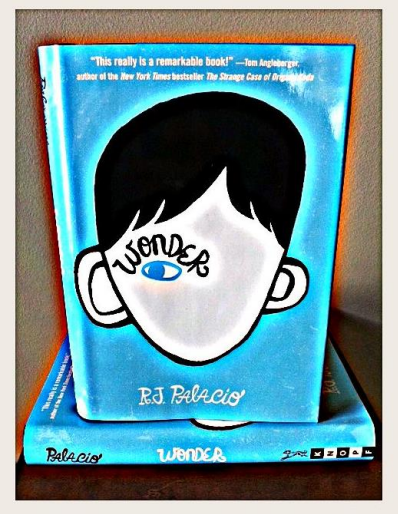

HYPOTHESIS / RESEARCH STATEMENT: The novels that engage us are those that explore THEMES with which we can identify. These stories help us to see that we are not alone - we can learn and grow by analysing the way that the characters interact with each other around the themes.

RESEARCH QUESTION / DRIVING QUESTION: Are the THEMES addressed in novels important as a means of engaging our interest and assisting our understanding of the world around us? Answer the above question with specific reference to the sources below. Source A is a summary of the novel "Wonder" by R. J. Palacio (Alfred J. Knopf, 2012). Source B is an extract from the novel.

SOURCE A: SUMMARY OF THE NOVEL "Wonder", by R. J. Palacio

"Wonder" by R.J. Palacio tells the story of August "Auggie" Pullman, a boy born with a medical condition affecting his facial features. Auggie doesn't look like other kids, even after having many operations to help him. Because of his poor health, his parents decide to homeschool him for the first few years of primary school. This means that he has very limited contact with other kids his age. But when Auggie reaches middle school, his parents decide to send him to a mainstream school in the area.

At the beginning of the novel, Auggie is terrified of going to a 'normal' school. He knows that he looks very different to the other learners and feels that he will be treated like a freak. The novel allows us to journey with Auggie through his first year at Beecher Prep School. Along the way, he learns very powerful lessons, including dealing with bullying and understanding what true friendship means.

The characters in the novel, including Auggie's sister, Via, his friends, Jack and Summer, and the bully, Julian, who targets Auggie at school, all play important roles in Auggie's development. He faces huge challenges, but through his experiences with others, he finally learns to accept himself as he is and finds his place in the world.

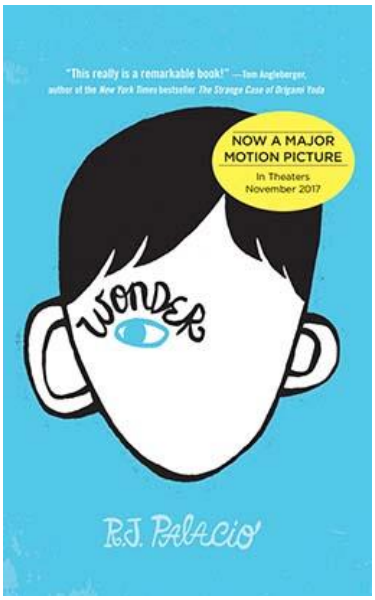

"Wonder" shows us how important it is to be kind to others and to show compassion even when it's difficult. It also highlights the issue of prejudice and why we need to look beyond physical appearances. By the end of the novel, we can clearly see that as human beings, we are all connected. There is no power greater than love – both of ourselves and of others. Far too often, the way we see ourselves is influenced by how others treat us. Auggie's story teaches us that we need to find our own identities, and be true to ourselves.

SOURCE B: EXTRACT from "Wonder", by R. J. Palacio

''I know I'm not an ordinary ten-year-old kid. I mean, sure, I do ordinary things. I eat ice cream. I ride my bike. I play ball. I have an XBox. Stuff like that makes me ordinary. I guess, And I feel ordinary. Inside. But I know ordinary kids don't make other ordinary kids run away screaming in playgrounds. I know ordinary kids don't get stared at wherever they go.

If I found a magic lamp and I could have one wish, I would wish that I had a normal face that no one ever noticed at all. I would wish that I could walk down the street without people seeing me and then doing that look-away thing. Here's what I think: the only reason I'm not ordinary is that no one else sees me that way.
But I'm kind of used to how I look by now. I know how to pretend I don't see the faces people make. We've all gotten pretty good at that sort of thing: me, Mom and Dad, Via. Actually, I take that back:

Via's not so good at it. She can get really annoyed when people do something rude. Like, for instance, one time in the playground some older kids made some noises. I don't even know what the noises were exactly because I didn't hear them myself, but Via heard and she just started yelling at the kids. That's the way she is. I'm not that way. Via doesn't see me as ordinary. She says she does, but if I were ordinary, she wouldn't feel like she needs to protect me as much. And Mom and Dad don't see me as ordinary, either. They see me as extraordinary. I think the only person in the world who realizes how ordinary I am is me.

My name is August, by the way. I won't describe what I look like. Whatever you're thinking, it's probably worse.''
(Palacio, 2012: 3)
